Listing verses of the Greek New Testament
By order of Frequently Used Words

Compiled by Gregory C. Wolff

All Scripture taken from Nestle-Aland, Novum Testamentum Graece, 28th Revised Edition, edited by Barbara and Kurt Aland, Johannes Karavidopoulos, Carlo M. Martini, and Bruce M. Metzger in cooperation with the Institute for New Testament Textual Research, Münster/Westphalia, © 2012 Deutsche Bibelgesellschaft, Stuttgart. Used by permission.

INTRODUCTION

I am convinced that the best way to read Scripture in the original language is to read Scripture in the original language. However, sometimes that's difficult, because if we simply open a Greek New Testament and start reading, we encounter too many words that are unfamiliar. This can often be frustrating for newer students of the Greek New Testament. Many times, students may complete their first year of Greek study to “fulfill a requirement” and simply give up on the joyous task (yes, it is a task!) of learning to read God's Word as originally given to us.

But, what if there was a tool that introduced the student to entire verses of the Greek New Testament containing the common vocabulary that first-year Greek students would be familiar with? Wouldn't it be encouraging to take the vocabulary you did know, and read particular verses based upon that vocabulary? This would inspire the student to “stick with it” and build on the skills they already had!

This Graded Reading Companion is designed around that principle. It is not designed to replace Greek reading (even passages that you don't understand), in-depth study, translation or word studies. It is designed to supplement those activities and give the student confidence when learning to read the Greek New Testament—this is a goal that can be accomplished!

This resource is intended for students who have completed the first year of Greek study. They should be familiar with all the Greek verb forms and understand the basics of Greek grammar and syntax. Even though this Graded Reading Companion is based upon the frequency of vocabulary, some of the Greek sentence constructions may be either unfamiliar or challenging. This is the nature of New Testament Greek. I encourage the student to attempt to translate as much of the text as possible before referring to an English Bible translation (a more literal translation would be most helpful here).

I also encourage the student to work with other students. Nothing can replace the academic exchange of ideas—especially when it comes to translation of the Greek New Testament. Many times, a new (or different) perspective will enable the student to better understand the text. This method also allows students to learn from other students, encourage one another in their studies and grow together in their understanding of God’s Word. This could serve as a foundation for life-long learning.

The reader should be aware of how this Graded Reading Companion was constructed. The verses listed in this resource are grouped by frequency of the least frequently used word in the verse, listed in canon order. When determining frequency, proper names and foreign, indeclinable words are excluded. It seems unnecessary to learn these words, as most students can recognize Ἰησοῦς Χριστός as “Jesus Christ,” as well as Ἀβραάμ as “Abraham.” Likewise, the average student has little problem recognizing the word ἀλληλουϊά as the Greek transliterated form of the Hebrew “Halleluiah! Praise the Lord!” By excluding these words, the number of verses available to us increases, thus, allowing the student more time reading the Greek New Testament!

I’ve also removed some verses from this list which would not be very helpful. For example, once we exclude proper names, the genealogies found in Matthew and Luke, as well as the lists of the twelve apostles, come to the surface as “easy to read” verses. However, there is little benefit to the student in merely transliterating these names into English. Thus, these have been excluded.

This resource covers all verses that use only those words that are used 50 or more times in the Greek New Testament (roughly the same vocabulary presented in Beginning with New Testament Greek). That is a vocabulary of only about 300 words. However, with that vocabulary of 300 words, the student can read more than 600 verses in the New Testament! As the student reinforces their vocabulary, they will gain more confidence to read more of these verses, and be encouraged to learn more vocabulary, and expand their ability to read more of the Greek New Testament.

I pray that this tool will help get you reading the Greek New Testament!

Contract Verbs

Contract Vowel + Singular Vowel at Beginning of Verb's Personal Endings (5 rules)

- $\epsilon + o, o + \epsilon, o + o = ou$
- $\epsilon + \epsilon = \epsilon i$
- $\omega$  is formed from almost any vowel combined with  $o$  or  $\omega$ , except for cases covered by the first bullet above.
- $\alpha + \epsilon = \alpha$
- $o + \epsilon i = oi$

Contract Vowel + Diphthong at Beginning of Verb's Personal Ending (2 rules)

- If the contract vowel and the first vowel of the diphthong are the same, they simplify (i.e., one of the double letters drops out).

$$\varepsilon + \varepsilon\iota = \varepsilon\iota$$

$$o + o\upsilon = o\upsilon$$

- If the contract vowel and the first vowel of the diphthong are different, they contract. If the second vowel of the diphthong is an iota, it subscript if possible; if it is an upsilon it drops off.

$$\varepsilon + o\upsilon = o\upsilon$$

$$\alpha + \varepsilon\iota = \alpha_{\iota}$$

Purpose

An infinitive can be used to communicate an intended purpose. This can be done using three different constructions: (1) infinitive alone, (2) infinitive with τοῦ, and (3) infinitive with εἰς τό. In most cases, you can still translate the purpose infinitive as “to” + the meaning of the verb.

πορεύομαι ἐτοιμάσαι τόπον ὑμῖν, “I am going away to prepare a place for you” (John 14:2).

result

A result infinitive is one that expresses an actual result and not merely an intended one (i.e., purpose). This usage typically occurs after ὥστε (“so that”) and less commonly after εἰς τό (since it usually communicates purpose).

ἐπίστευσεν εἰς τὸ γενέσθαι αὐτὸν πατέρα πολλῶν ἐθνῶν, “He believed so that he became the father of many nations” (Rom 4:18).

Previous (or antecedent) time is communicated by μετὰ τό + infinitive and signals that the action of the infinitive occurs before the action of the main verb.

Contemporaneous time is communicated by ἐν τῷ + infinitive and signals that the action of the infinitive occurs at the same time as the action of the main verb.

Subsequent time is communicated by πρὸ τοῦ or πρίν (ἤ) + infinitive and signals that the action of the infinitive occurs after the action of the main verb.

A causal infinitive is communicated by διὰ τό + infinitive and expresses the reason or ground for the action of the main verb.

Purpose/Result (ἵνα, ὅπως + subj.)

- ταῦτα γράφω ὑμῖν ἵνα μὴ ἀμάρτητε, “I write these things to you in order that you might not sin” (1 John 2:1). The term ἵνα introduces the reason why John writes his letter.

Indefinite Clauses (ὅς ἂν, ὅταν, ἕως ἂν + subj.)

- ὅς ἂν ἐμὲ δέξηται, δέχεται τὸν ἀποστείλαντά με, “Whoever receives me receives the one who sent me” (Luke 9:48 NABRE).
- ὅταν προσεύχησθε, οὐκ ἔσεσθε ὡς οἱ ὑποκριταί, “Whenever you pray, do not be like the hypocrites” (Matt 6:5).

Emphatic Negation (οὐ μή + subj.)

- βλέποντες βλέψετε καὶ οὐ μή ἴδητε, “Seeing you will see and never perceive” (Acts 28:26).

Conditional (ἐάν, ἐάν μή + subj.)

- ἐάν ἐγὼ δοξάσω ἑμαυτόν, ἡ δόξα μου οὐδέν ἐστιν, “If I glorify myself, my glory is nothing” (John 8:54).
- ἐάν μή οὗτοι μείνωσιν ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ, ὑμεῖς σωθῆναι οὐ δύνασθε, “Unless these men remain in the ship, you yourselves cannot be saved” (Acts 27:31 NASB).

First Class (εἰ + indicative)

- The condition is assumed as true for the sake of the argument.
- Consider this example: εἰ πνεύματι ἄγεσθε, οὐκ ἐστὲ ὑπὸ νόμον, “If you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the law” (Gal 5:18; see also Matt 4:6; 18:8). The idea here is that since believers are led by the Spirit, they are not under the law.

Second Class (εἰ + indicative + ἄν)

- The condition is presented by the speaker as contrary-to-fact, like this: “If (and I, the speaker, do not think this is true) . . .” The particle ἄν is not always present in a contrary-to-fact condition, so always pay attention to context.
- For example, consider εἰ ἦς ὧδε, οὐκ ἂν ἀπέθανεν ὁ ἀδελφός μου, “If you had been here, my brother wouldn’t have died” (John 11:21; see also Matt 11:23; John 5:46). The meaning is that since Jesus was not present, Lazarus died. It could be paraphrased, “If you were here (but you weren’t), my brother would not have died (but he did).”

Third Class (ἐάν + subjunctive)

- The condition is presented more remotely than the first-class conditional—as a hypothetical projection.
- Take, for instance, ἐάν εἴπωμεν ὅτι ἁμαρτίαν οὐκ ἔχομεν, ἑαυτοὺς πλανῶμεν καὶ ἡ ἀλήθεια οὐκ ἔστιν ἐν ἡμῖν (1 John 1:8). In English, the passage reads this way: “If we say, ‘We have no sin,’ we are deceiving ourselves, and the truth is not in us.” Perhaps the apostle John uses the third-class conditional here because he includes himself and the faithful congregation to which he writes in considering this flawed perspective. We could paraphrase: “Just imagine for a minute, brothers and sisters . . . what if we were to say that we were sinless? What would that say about our spiritual condition? We would be self-deceived and show that the truth is not in us.”

Fourth Class (εἰ + optative)

- The condition is presented as an extremely remote possibility.
- ἀλλ’ εἰ καὶ πάσχοιτε διὰ δικαιοσύνην, μακάριοι, “But even if you should suffer for righteousness, you are blessed” (1 Pet 3:14) is an example of the fourth class.

1. καὶ ἐὰν πορευθῶ καὶ ἐτοιμάσω τόπον ὑμῖν, πάλιν ἔρχομαι (John 14:3).
2. οὐ γὰρ ἀπέστειλεν ὁ θεὸς τὸν υἱὸν εἰς τὸν κόσμον ἵνα κρίνη τὸν κόσμον, ἀλλ' ἵνα σωθῆ ὁ κόσμος δι' αὐτοῦ (John 3:17).
3. ἐὰν ὑμεῖς μείνητε ἐν τῷ λόγῳ τῷ ἐμῷ, ἀληθῶς μαθηταί μου ἐστε (John 8:31).
4. ταῦτα λελάληκα ὑμῖν ἵνα ἡ χαρὰ ἡ ἐμὴ ἐν ὑμῖν ἢ καὶ ἡ χαρὰ ὑμῶν πληρωθῆ (John 15:11).
